

Election Experts Available: Race and Politics

NOVEMBER 5, 2018

For journalists looking for expert sources to comment on issues of race and ethnicity in the midterm elections, these scholars are available to comment:

Jessica Louce Trounstine, University of California, Merced

jtrounstine@ucmerced.edu

@trounstine

Expert on race and incumbency in local and state level elections. Can comment on California races.

Zoltan Hajnal, University of California, San Diego

zhajnal@ucsd.edu

Expert on the role of race/ethnicity and immigration in American politics. Can comment on divisions in the vote, motivations behind the vote, voting rights, or electoral institutions.

Dewey Clayton, University of Louisville

d.clayton@louisville.edu

Expert on race and politics. Can comment on the governor races in Maryland, Georgia, and Florida as well as national legislature election results.

Sophia Jordàn Wallace, University of Washington

sophiajw@uw.edu

Expert on immigration, race, and ethnicity tied to the election.

Taeku Lee, University of California, Berkeley

taekulee@berkeley.edu

Expert on on how African Americans, Latinos, Asian Americans, Native Americans, and Whites voted in 60+ battleground congressional districts and six key states (Arizona, California, Florida, Georgia, Nevada, Texas).