Expert Available: DOJ and Apple standoff on unlocking iPhone

JANUARY 15, 2020

The Department of Justice is once again asking Apple to unlock an iPhone related to a mass shooting. If you're looking for an expert opinion on the matter, Professor Alan Rozenshtein is available and happy to comment. He is an expert on encryption, cybersecurity, and the relationship between the government and the technology sector. Please contact him directly or reach out to Dominik Doemer to be connected.

"Both Apple and the Department of Justice suffered from their fight over the San Bernardino iPhone, so both want a resolution that doesn't involve legal action. But the only way for this issue to be resolved going forward is for either the courts or (more likely) Congress to definitively answer the question of how much assistance technology companies have to provide the government when criminals and terrorists use their products."
