

3 Experts Available for Timely Analysis on Supreme Court Planned Parenthood Hearing

APRIL 2, 2025

Dominik Doemer

Today, the Supreme Court is hearing arguments in the case Medina vs. Planned Parenthood South Atlantic, which will decide whether states can bar Planned Parenthood from receiving Medicaid funds. For reporters covering this case and its potential implications, the following academics are available to provide commentary and analysis:

SARA ROSENBAUM

George Washington University

A teacher and scholar, a highly popular speaker, the recipient of numerous awards and honors, and a widely-read writer on many aspects of health law and policy, Rosenbaum is best known for her work on national health reform, Medicaid, health insurance and managed care, health care access for medically underserved communities and populations, and civil rights and health care.

NICOLE HUBERFELD

Boston University

Huberfeld's research focuses on the cross-section of health law and constitutional law with emphasis health care reform; the role of federalism in health care; and Medicaid. She co-authored The Law of American Health Care; the first new casebook on health care law in a generation; and is coauthor of Public Health Law (3d ed. 2019).

DANA MARTHA JOHNSON

University of Wisconsin-Madison

Johnson's research interests include sexual and reproductive health, health policy, social policy, and population health. Her opinion pieces on access to abortion and contraception are featured in The New York Times, Teen Vogue, Slate, Ms. Magazine, and other outlets.
